

PROGRAM MANAGER HomeFree Nevada (Las Vegas, NV) is soliciting proposals for an immediate opening for the position of Program Manager. This position is grant funded through 2010 with variable hours. The preferred candidate will ensure the efficient operation of HomeFree Nevada's Home Performance with ENERGY STAR Program activities and other duties and responsibilities that may become necessary as determined by the Board of Directors and Management. Primary duties include, but are not limited to, implementing the HomeFree Nevada Quality Assurance/Quality Control Program, expanding the existing program, auditor and contractor development through mentoring, and assisting in developing a self-sustaining program statewide including sustainable funding activities not dependent on federal and state grant sources. Additionally, the preferred candidate should have a degree in engineering, resource sciences, business, construction management or related field from a 4-year accredited college or university, OR 5+ years experience in energy conservation construction, weatherization, or housing related field and demonstrated leadership experience successfully developing people, processes and systems. Additional considerations include HERS/RESNET and BPI Building Analyst certifications; experience managing grants; strong experience implementing IT based operational systems; proven operational excellence in high growth mid-sized companies able to grow the business in sustainable increments; outstanding computer skills with varied technical expertise; motivation to create change via energy efficiency and the green energy economy. To apply: Qualified applicants should submit their proposal, salary requirements, resume, and three recent references to: Attention Robert Fielden, at RFielden@rafi-nevada.com. The position will remain open until filled.